WE NOMINATE

Arthur Francis Buddington, one of the great geologists of his time and an enthusiastic Princetonian for some 36 years, who twice in the past two years has been singled out for awards reserved for distinctive research. Last week in Minneapolis, Minn., the 65-year old teacher-scientist received the Roebling Medal of the Mineralogical Society of America for his outstanding contributions in mineralogy. Late in 1954, the year marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of Princeton University's Department of Geology, he became the only full-time university professor in this country to hold the highest honor conferred by the Geological Society of America, the Penrose Medal, which is presented annually in recognition of achievements leading to a "decided advance in science and geology."

Closely associated with the U. S. Geological Survey since he spent summers with its Alaskan Branch in the early 1920's, Buddington, a native of Wilmington, Del., is currently concerned with mapping and analyzing an extensive airborne magnetic survey of mineral resources, a project linked with the government's efforts to map the entire country from the standpoint of economic and scientific interests. This particular venture stems from the 11 years he served as principal geologist with the U. S. Survey in charge of the further development of iron ore in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania and recalls his role in pioneering in the use of airborne magnetic equipment in discovering iron ore prospects in this hemisphere.

Buddington, specializing in the chemistry of rocks, the geology of the Adirondack Mountains and the nature and arrangement of the concentric shells in the outer 25 miles of earth, remains active in a dozen or more professional societies. A frequent contributor to scientific publications and associate editor of the American Journal of Science, he is a former president of the Mineralogical Society of America and has been vice-president of the Geological Society of America as well as a section head of the American Geophysical Union. Among his other continuing affiliations are the American Philosophical Society, Sigma XI, the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A member of the Class of 1912 at Brown University, which three decades later was to award him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, Buddington took his doctorate at Princeton in 1916 and during World War I divided his military service between the Army Signal Corps and Chemical Warfare Service. He subsequently taught at Brown and spent a year with Carnegie Geophysical Laboratory as petrologist before joining the Princeton Faculty in 1920. Named the University's Curator of Petrology in 1921 and advanced to a full professorship in 1932, he "chaired" Princeton's Department of Geology for 14 years, finally relinquishing the post in 1950 to devote more time to the development of fundamental research programs.

For helping geology attain its present-day status as a well-integrated and powerful field of knowledge; for adapting the long-range view of the geological sciences, a hindsight extending back some 2,500,000 millennia, to the needs of the present and future; for strengthening this community's cherished research tradition; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

REPUBLICANS CUT CAKE

G.O.P. Takes All. Cut from the same pattern that baked the mammoth Republican cake, Princeton wrote the 1956 elections into the history book as a solid Republican victory. Only three of the community's 13 districts gave a Democrat a majority, as the two incumbents of the party lost to their G.O.P. opponents at the borough council level.

As he had elsewhere throughout the nation, President Eisenhower topped his Princeton ticket by a wide margin. In the borough, he polled 2,686 votes—nearly 400 more than the next highest Republican—with his margin virtually identical in the township. Approximately 87% of the voters in each municipality went to the polls, but there were few delays and the machines made complete tabulation possible less than an hour after the 8 p.m. closing.

In the borough, last year's four-vote loser, Prof. Alfred E. Sorenson, won a new term by topping the four-man race with 2,199 votes. Selected with him for the first time was Maurice A. Mather, who drew 2,125.

The defeated incumbents had each served a three-year term. Richard W. Colman, Jr. received 1,929 votes and Raymond F. Male, 1921.

Princeton Township endorsed the move of its Republican-dominated governing body, which had appointed the three G.O.P. candidates to serve out unexpired terms until election day. Successful in their bids to serve three-year terms were James G. Campbell

(2,065 votes) and John S. Mount (2,030.) They won by approximately 600 over Democrats Ansley J. Coale (1,468) and William B. Bretnall (1,412.)

Joining them on the committee for a two-year term (left vacant by former mayor John H. Wallace, Jr.) is Charles A. Hurford, who won a three-way race with 2,063 votes. He topped Democrat William G. Whatley (988) and the only independent and only woman office-seeker, Mrs. Ruth Kleinberg (463).

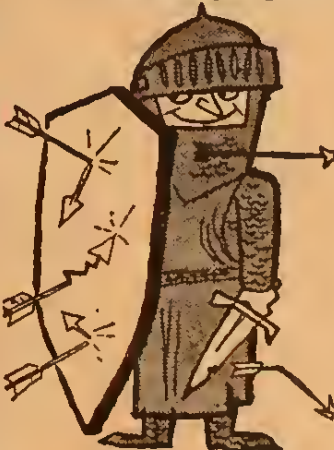

The position of tax collector also went to a township Republican, Walter B. Foster, Jr. winning with 2,126 votes to 1,361 for Simeon Moss. Unopposed for assessor, Republican Stuart Robson polled 2,380. (For district totals in all local races, see boxes, pages 1 and 2.)

Raffles Approved. By a margin of 203 votes, borough residents reversed their 1954 stand on raffles, which were made legal as a result of Tuesday's balloting. Approval was registered, 1,598 to 1,395 with only districts one and eight dissenting. Church opposition to the referendum had not materialized as it did two years —Continue on Page 2

Princeton contributed to defeat of the two state-wide questions on the ballot. The question of a revised policy on tax assessments lost by some 400 votes in both borough and township, while the matter of increasing the sheriff's term from three to five years was rejected by respective margins of 500 and nearly 700.

Three-Time Winner

Princetonian Willie Hayes wasn't even running for political office Tuesday, but he suddenly picked up a lot of support. And it's a mighty lucky thing he wasn't a candidate because he won't have any time for office-holding for a long while to come.

At 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Mrs. Beulah Hayes, 33, proudly presented her 31-year-old husband with a baby boy at Princeton Hospital. By 8:58 a.m., a second boy was born and, at 9:31 a.m., Mr. Hayes learned the staggering news that he was the father of three boys—only the second set of triplets to be born here in a decade.

The three newborn youngsters, who were greeted by a one-year-old sister, Sheila, and whose father works for Delco Battery in New Brunswick, were brought into the world by Dr. Raymond Stone, attending physician, and Dr. Nathaniel Greenfield, pediatrician. Considering their premature weight of three pounds each, their condition was called "good," indicating an early trip to their home on the Lincoln Highway, Route 27, R.D., Princeton.

The last triplets at Princeton Hospital were girls, born January 29, 1948, and their parents were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Larson, then living on Cherry Hill Road.

Washington Road, marking Eisenhower's victory with a pizza pie party, salled lighted pie boxes out of a second-story window. Several were blown back into an open ground-floor window, setting a couch and nearby wall ablaze before the flames were extinguished.

With a rare assist from the weatherman, who dampened spirits of youngsters only, Princeton experienced one of its "quietest" (and wettest) Hallowe'ens . . . "Mischief Night," an evening earlier, hardly lived up to its name, police officers were delighted to report. . . Less pleased this week were Borough Councilmen after noting that the county's new "recreation report" lists Marquand Park as a "proposed" recreation area. . . They thought they had a pretty well-developed park area there already! . . . Council also is curious to know when the state intends to install the Harrison-Hamilton traffic light, since the grapevine says it's coming but the highway bigwigs have yet to confirm. . . Speculation continued this week regarding the University's plan to erect a single family dwelling near the Graduate College, believed to be a likely new home for President Harold W. Dodds, who retires next June. . . It seemed like safer speculation than guessing who will occupy "Prospect," the president's current home on campus.

Concluding that bowling must be almost as closely pursued in the nation's sports pages as it is in the nation's bowling alleys, Town Topics responds to the conclusion this week by presenting the first in a weekly series of Bowling Notes, designed to keep Princetonians up-to-date on individual and team activities in all local leagues (page 20) . . . Another Weekly feature of the Town Topics, one-year-old-plus Question of the Week (page 13), pays a quick re-visit to the Suez area, prompted obviously by a Hicklin, 6 Greenholm, wants to have answered, so Town Topics obliges: Are there any boys or girls of the Winant Club living in the Princeton area?

Topics of the Town

BIGGEST EVER
New Subdivision's Problems. With vigilant eyes cocked on the Township's immediate-future growth problems, members of that municipality's Planning Board wrestled for a long time Monday evening with plans for the proposed subdivision of the spacious "Gulick Estate." They finally drafted a letter to the sub-dividers, Carl Geiger and Heston N. Potts of New Brunswick, advising them that a thorough study of the elaborate plans is underway.

When Messrs. Geiger and Potts officially filed their blueprints at Township Hall several weeks ago, they expressed the hope that preliminary approval might be obtained at this month's session of the Planning Board. But the board members, fully cognizant that the proposed development is three or four times larger than any housing project ever undertaken in the Princeton area, decided to think it over carefully, indicating that they probably will take a long while to resolve all questions involved.

According to the letter written at Monday's meeting, the board noted that it must consider many features of the 189-lot subdivision, to be known as Princeton Country Estates. Included are recreation areas, school requirements, sidewalks, traffic routing, the location of Teshune Road's easterly extension (an important link in the long-range Kingston-Rosedale Road artery) and, of foremost significance, location of the state's proposed by-pass of Princeton.

Regarding the state by-pass, or Route 206A (linking Route 206 with Route 1), the Planning Board reported that it had just received a letter from the Mercer County Planning Board relative to the matter. The county group stated it had referred the by-pass question to the state—before considering plans for Princeton Country Estates—since part of the plans "might fall within an area where the new route might be located."

State to Reveal Plans. The State Highway Department, by way of its chief engineer, Otto H. Fritzsche, already has promised Princeton Township officials that it intends to announce the exact location of the by-pass soon. The $6500,000 job will cut across Bolmer's Corner, near the eastern end of Princeton-Kingston Road, but its precise pinpointing has been delayed pending a state survey of the land. Now, although construction of the by-pass remains a thing of the none-too-immediate future, the state will complete its survey in order to help the Township with its pressing planning problems.

Mr. Geiger, on submitting his plans, said he and Mr. Potts were in a position to work out their subdivision proposals so as to fit hand-in-glove with the all-important by-pass, but he felt time was of the essence and hoped the state would determine its position—Continued on Page 4 tion with dispatch. The Flanning Board echoed his sentiments, pointing out that it cannot proceed with plans for many road extensions and even bridges until it knows what the state is contemplating for the future.

In other action on Monday, the board members approved plans for the nine-lot Princeton University subdivision on Province Lane Road, pending final okay by the county board, and authorized the subdivision of Bayard Stockton's property on Van Dyke Road. The latter decision had been postponed while Mr. Stockton clarified how he planned to divide the property in two, showing access from the road to the half containing his home (to be sold) and the rear half containing his barn (to be retained).

A request for approval of plans for the eight-lot Sommerfeld subdivision, located east of Riverdale off Carmel Lake, was tabled until the board's December meeting. Members said they wanted to study the area's road set-up before endorsing the project.

Death of "Nellie Bly" Sentimentalists as well as mid-day travelers have been asked to write objections, send attorneys or appear in person in Newark next Tuesday, when the Pennsylvania Railroad is scheduled to ring the death knell for "Nellie Bly" at 11 a. m. in room 123 of the Public Utilities Commission building. Doing the asking: a hard corps of Princetonians that feels the "Nellie Bly" is a dandy train to keep around.

According to her devoted supporters, "Nellie Bly" performs a definite service to Princetonians in the second half of her daily journey, for she hauls a good number of passengers out of New York City, arriving here at 2:18 p. m. and she also carries quite a few from Princeton to Atlantic City. Each morning, she makes fine time, picking up passengers at Princeton Junction at 11:58 a. m. and reaching New York 57 minutes later, but she doesn't have many morning friends and doesn't even rate "dinky" ad then because she gets here only 12 minutes behind a creek local train.

Boosters of "Nellie Bly" have a feeling that the Pennco will total in—going with out-going figures in an effort to end her career. But they plan to be represented in Newark to prove that commuters with "bankers' hours" aren't the only ones taking advantage of her New York to Atlantic City accommodations.

The United Way. Success for the new "Give where you work" policy of the Princeton United Community Fund seems already assured. Very significant increases in pledges have been reported and 38% of the fund goal has now been reached, with $51,200 raised.

Some examples why the fundraisers are eyeing their $192,000 quota with optimism: the University Press increased its contributed amount by 107% as 46% more employees subscribed than in 1955. A partial report from the Westminster Choir College shows an increase of 69% over last year, and employees at Educational Testing Service increased their subscriptions 21.6%. The total gift from Woolworth's employees was increased 30%, and American Cyanamid Co. employee gifts went up 53%.

The attempt to shift the emphasis to giving at work has been made to ease the increasingly heavy burden off the shoulders of volunteer solicitors doing home solicitation. Even with 3500 persons giving through their businesses, over 1500 home solicitations are still necessary.

SUPPLY VS. DEMAND

Red Flag Goes Up. The Princeton area, where population growth has been startling since the end of World War II, stands a good chance of experiencing acute water shortages in the future if the next stages of expansion aren't closely supervised. Land throughout the Stony Brook Watershed, of which Princeton is an integral part, cannot produce sufficient water supplies to cope with unbridled growth.

With such observations, leaders of a regional planning project for the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association underscored the importance of their recent studies at a luncheon meeting last Friday. Some 60 members of the association and government officials representing most of the participating municipalities gathered at the Cranbury Inn to hear "progress report" on these studies.

Austin G. Palmer, Rutgers research associate in planning engineering who is directing data collection and project organization under the supervision of Dr. Edward B. Wilkens, director of the Rutgers University Planning Service, told the group that investi-

News of the Theatres

Mc CARTER THEATRE

New Play Tonight. After a hiatus of nearly four weeks, McCarter Theatre will re-open at 8 tonight for the world premiere of a new, Broadway-bound comedy, "Everybody Loves Me." The Princeton run will continue with an 8:30 p.m. performance Friday and a pair of Saturday showings, the regular 2:30 "thrill matinee" and another 8:30 offering.

(At mid-week, as Town Topics went to press, there was evidence to support the belief that Princetonians were more concerned with the general election than with theatre plans for the coming weekend. Tickets for "Everybody" were moving slower than anticipated, though a post-election surge was confidently expected. Reservations for all four performances are being handled through (PR 1-5515).

Veteran producer Max Gordon has assembled a wealth of talent for the product of a new playwrighting team, Mannie Mannheim and Arthur Marx (son of Groucho), which is scheduled for an early December Broadway opening. In addition to Robert B. Sinclair, the director, he has lined up Jack Carson for the demanding lead role and such personnel as Temple Texas, Pat Harrington, Conrad Janis and Robert Pastene in support.

Everybody in the large cast for "Everybody" has a theatrical biography that makes impressive reading. Miss Texas, for example, has appeared in "Seven Lively Arts," "It Takes Two," "The Girl From Nantucket" and, most recently, "Pipe Dream." Mr. Harrington, a 25-year stage veteran, has devoted his talents to musicals, including "Call Me Madam," as well as dramas, including "Counsellor at Law," while young Mr. Janis has already scored successes in "Dark of the Moon," "The Next Half Hour" and "The Brass Ring," for which he won the Theatre World Award for "most outstanding performance."

In signing Messrs. Carson and Sinclair for the play's most difficult chores, the producer had excellent reasons. "Everybody" deals with the family relationships of a reigning TV comic, so, in Carson, he felt he had the perfect casting. And it deals intimately with the comic's professional jealousy for his son, also a comedian, so, in Sinclair, Mr. Gordon has just the directional touch to elevate the show from "straight antics" to something heartwarming as well as amusing.

Asked if he minds gambling on works by new playwrights, Mr. Gordon gave an emphatic "No" and pointed with pride to some of his past hits. Among his "new" playwrights of bygone days were Claire Booth, with "The Women," Ruth Gordon, with "Over 21" and Garson Kanin, with "Born Yesterday."

FOOTLIGHT FOOTNOTES

Critics Sleep, Too. "The Sleeping Prince," which premiered at McCarter Theatre in mid-October and received a fair share of yawns in Town Topics' review, opened at the Coronet last Thursday and received similar treatment from the New York critics. Most of the Broadway aisle-sitters discovered they were sleeping right along with the "Prince," placing the blame on Terence Rattigan's script rather than the acting of Michael Redgrave and Barbara Bel Geddes.

WELL-ROUNDED TALENT: Her name is Temple Texas (well, now it is anyhow) and she hails from Arkansas, but her appeal is universal. Princeton theatergoers will find out why when they see her this weekend in "Everybody Loves Me" at McCarter Theatre.

At the time of its Princeton tryout, Town Topics wondered "why the Cinderella story must be re-worked quite so often" and felt that "first-rate Rattigan ought to be demanded." It was noted that Miss Bel Geddes seemed "uncertain now and then that she was putting her hours on stage to worthwhile use" and that Mr. Redgrave performed "rather stiffly." In summation, the play was labeled a "none-too-fresh Cinderella cake."

Herewith a sampling of comments by the Broadway critics, indicative of their wholesale boredom:

• Atkinson in the Times: "Having contributed 'Separate Tables' to our season, Terence Rattigan has done his bit. His second play for the year, 'The Sleeping Prince' . . . is the indulgence he — Continued on Page 6

Music in Princeton

VARIED PROGRAMS

Glee Club to Sing. A joint annual football concert will be given at Alexander Hall Friday night at 8:30 by the Princeton and Harvard Universities Glee Clubs. Tickets at $1 can be bought at the University Store, and, on the evening of the performance, at Alexander Hall.

The program will include music by composers such as Bach, Berlioz, Schubert, Mendelssohn and Sullivan, and, in the tradition of fall concerts, there will be a good number of rousing football songs. The Princeton Glee Club is conducted by Carl Weinrich.

Chamber Music Program Planned. The Fine Arts Quartet will play string quartets by Bartok, Haydn and Seymour Shifrin at the first Procter Hall concert of the season Sunday afternoon at 3:15. The concert is sponsored by the Friends of Music and is open to the public without charge.

The quartet is comprised of Leonard Sorkin and Abram Loft, violinists; Irving Ilmer, violist; and George Sopkin, cellist. Heard for eight years of consecutive coast-to-coast radio broadcasts, the quartet has also made many recordings and has served as Quartet-in-Residence at Northwestern University. It has appeared in concerts throughout this country and Canada.

Musical Amateurs Meet. Handel's "Samson" will be the program for the next meeting of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs Sunday afternoon at 5:15 at Miss Fine's School. The soloists will be Virginia Switten, soprano; Barbara Hilbish, contralto; Harry Powers, tenor, and Fadlou Shehadi, bass.

The orchestra will be conducted by professor J. Merrill Knapp of the department of music at the University. All who wish to attend are invited. Supper reservations may be made by calling Mrs. MacKenty Bryan at 1-0453 between 2 and 4:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Symphony Sets Program. Music by two composers of the 18th century, who were both at the court of Frederick the Great, will be played at the Princeton Symphony Orchestra concert a week from Saturday at 8:30 in the High School Auditorium. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct.

The two composers are Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, second son of Johann Sebastian, and Johann Joachim Quantz who wrote some 300 concertos for one or two flutes, many of them dedicated to Frederick. C.P.E. Bach's concerto for orchestra in D major was originally scored for four violas concertante, but will be played in the arrangement made by Maximilian Steinberg in 1909 for flute, two oboes, English horn, bassoon, French horn and strings. Quantz will be represented by his flute concerto in G major.

The contemporary American composer, Kent Kennan's "Night Soliloquy" will be performed, and the closing work on the program will be Mendelssohn's symphony in C major, written first as a string quartet, when the composer was 14 years old. Information about series tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Henry A. Barton, 25 Springdale Road, Tel. 1-0442. Single tickets for this concert will be on sale at the University Store starting Saturday.

is entitled to ask for having done a good deed."

● Kerr in the Trib: "In all that follows, alas, 'The Sleeping Prince' is never awakened. It is simply allowed to lie there."

● Chapman in the News: "Graustarkian is the only adjective for this comic-opera comedy, I guess, much as I wish there were a newer one; but, since 'The Sleeping Prince' is absolutely honorable in its intentions toward its audience, and is charmingly played by a cast which includes the marvelous Cathleen Nesbitt, it is entertaining if you'd like an easy journey into the world of make-believe."

● Donnelly in the World-Telegram: "Mr. Redgrave never seems comfortable in his role, and this feeling of unease is communicated to the spectator. . . . Miss Bell Geddes is as fresh and charming a creature as one could hope to see, but her basic style is a kind of lovable realism, and her current vehicle calls for something higher and more extravagant in tone, and a lot less literal."

● McClain in the Journal-American: "A handsome production and the combined efforts of a brilliant cast are not enough, in this reviewer's opinion, to make a very exciting evening of Terence Rattigan's 'The Sleeping Prince'. It is a woefully slow starter, to begin with, and even when the gears mesh and the wheels start turning it doesn't take us on a particularly emotional excursion."

● Coleman in the Mirror: "If 'The Sleeping Prince' is still tantalizing the Coronet by the time you read this salute, you might try it as an antidote for insomnia. You don't need a doctor's prescription for this rock-a-bye baby."

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Solid Gold Cadillac (Nov. 8-10) is a solid silver screen vehicle that doesn't even need color (until its clever closing sequence) to keep rolling merrily along, so the talented efforts of screenplay writer Abe Burrows, producer Fred Kohlmar and director Richard Quine are well protected. The story, a George S. Kaufman-Howard Teichmann product that Max Gordon brought successfully to the New York stage several seasons back, tells of the simple way that simple folks, with their few shares of stock, can take care of the big, bad manipulators who would steal from the stockholders—as long as the simpletons have Miss Holliday on their side. Paul Douglas and Fred Clark add appreciably to the entertainment, as does Neva Patterson, seen recently at McCarter Theatre in "Double in Hearts."

The Power and the Prize (Nov. 11-13) gives a bright newcomer, Elizabeth Mueller, a fat chance to expose her varied talents in company with a host of accomplished performers, Robert Taylor, Burl Ives, Charles Coburn, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Mary Astor, and Miss Mueller holds her own very well. As might be guessed, the film is a mixture of "Executive Suite" and "Patterns," with all kinds of romantic overtones, and, as might be guessed, it's done in CinemaScope without color. Surprisingly, some visual impact is lost due to the strictly black-and-white production, but not enough to keep it from being reasonably entertaining fare. To one's surprise, Mr. Taylor—after 10 these many years—is still "the young and brilliant protege."

Tea and Sympathy (Nov. 14-17) comes to the screen, this time CinemaScope with color, from a successful Broadway run, with stars Deborah Kerr and John Kerr (no kin) retained for the Hollywood version. It's not an easy story to tell and manage to get it by censors—dealing as it does with an accused homo-sexual who is saved from shame by a loving

It's New to Us

Soft Touch. Brushed synthetic fabrics look better and more like pastel marshmallows. The softest of "Kittibeen" robes, now at Edith's, 10 Chambers Street, is all the more noticeable because it's accented by a satin bow. The dustier-length robes come in beige, pink or blue. (Other robes are silk print in full length, and quilted nylon in short styles.)

Yolande makes an unusual gown and bed jacket ensemble in white tricot. The gown's bodice is blue and white print, and the matching print bolero has gold threads that resemble quilting. A wide-length black tricot gown has a white undershirt, and a surprising note—black velvet ribbon straps and Empire belt. (Red velvet and white, too.)

White tricot has been used in another way—length gown with a black lace Empire bodice and those black velvet straps. There's a black and white matching peignoir with oversized puff sleeves.

Want a luxury present for Christmas? Well, now that you mention it. . . Here's a collection of white slips, made of pure silk satin and trimmed with lace or net. A white one with beige lace is $14.95. There is also an all-white slip, more tailored in design, with a white nylon net edge at the top. A white slip with white lace, is $17.95. There is a black slip in the collection, too, but the exquisite texture of the silk is more evident in the white ones.

For the flamenco dancers among us, Edith has a red petticoat with a deep lace ruffle, permanently pleated and enhanced with nylon ribbon. There's a matching panty.

A new assortment of girdles and bras—the mainstays of the shop, if you'll go along with a pun—has arrived at Edith's, but before we mention them, we might remind you that many women wear a girdle for comfort rather than for appearance. For weak backs that ache when they shouldn't, there is the Camp surgical corset. It's attractive white stocked nylon, light in weight, but strategically boned and fitted with snug laces that will keep an aching back from being so.

Now for the other kind. Scandale has a girdle with fluff waist that doesn't bind. Lily of France has an "all-in-one" called "Enhance." It has straps, satin panels front and back and that sheath line. Olga of California has a heavy nylon lace girdle with nylon panel front and back. Bali's new bra has a pella lining in either dacron and cotton, or satin.

This Gun for Sale. All we know about guns is that our eight-year-old daughter is the fastest draw in town with a 69c shootin' iron. Armed only with ignorance, we paid a visit to the gun department at Tiger Auto the other day and examined, with some awe, a new Remington Automatic shotgun. It costs $129.50, in case you need a weapon.

It's a beautiful piece of machinery, anybody can see that, and it weighs a mere 7 1/2 pounds, which is lighter than any other comparable gun, so we are told. Pick one up at 26 Witherspoon Street.

As a matter of fact, you can buy a gun from Tiger for as little as $25.90. Tiger stocks single barrel, double barrel, pump and automatic shotguns, and of course, they have bows for hunters who prefer Robin Hood to Annie Oakley. Bows start at 20 pounds and go to 65. Arrows, notch, incidentally, this is the only store in Princeton that has hunting licenses in all shapes and sizes.

Sneak shooters may examine a new target-thrower equipped with a spring mechanism that's supposed to do all the work for you. Clay pigeons are available in quantity to be shot at.

Sportsmen will also like the new Strapper flashlights. They have a suede covered shaft and a rewinding loop to fasten in the belt. The lock-switch has a signal button, too.

Here's a surprise to give daddy some night when he comes home tired to a late supper: father and son boxing gloves, in a special kit.

Place Setting. The serene and yellow tint has never been used so felicitously as it has in some new place mats at The Town Shop, 67 Palmer Square West.

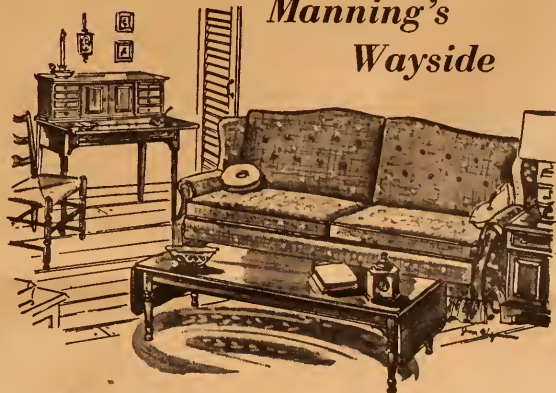

Similar to the old familiar laminated plastic mats, these new ones are plastic too, but different. You'll find a mat that looks like thin bamboo, another that's almost gold gauze. Others have silver or gold metallic threads and all of them employ natural floral pieces in the most delicate and imaginative manner. Long "laping" in deep tones of gold or green are available to match.

New lacquer pieces are red and gold, or black and gold. Royal Burmese lacquer is made from finely split bamboo, wrapped to form a framework for eight coats of lacquer. The pieces are black with an over-all tracery of gold design. There's a plate and cover for cheese, two boxes, one shaped like a duck, one like an owl, a round plate or tray, and an oblong box about 16 inches long.

Other lacquer wares in Japanese—lighters and cigarette boxes, demi-tasse, covered soup bowls, little black coasters with gold. —Continued on Page 8

MUSEUM EXHIBIT

Art Course Illustrated. The group of 17th century European paintings being exhibited at The University Art Museum has been selected from its own collection and is one of the shows concerned primarily with the illustration of a university art course. It is to be found in the second floor gallery.

Many of the main protagonists of 17th century painting are missing but the main trends may be noted through the work of minor artists and in the reflected influence of the great masters on their contemporaries. There are noteworthy exceptions to the absence of the great painters in the inclusion of a few paintings from the period immediately preceding.

There is a most magnificent painting of "St. Francis" adorning the Crucifix by El Greco, somber in color and intense in counter Reformation feeling. Two of the most influential Italians of this pre-17th century period are represented. One by a follower of Caravaggio, in a painting of St. Matthew and the Angel, is a vigorous work following closely the "First Saint Matthew" of Caravaggio painted for the Contarelli Chapel.

Caravaggio's painting was refused by the priests who claimed the St. Matthew did not look like a Saint, sitting with crossed legs and his feet crudely exposed to the people and that the figure had no decorum. As a result Caravaggio painted a more conventional St. Matthew for the chapel and V. Cusiiniani, to calm down the troubled waters, took the offending first St. Matthew into his own collection.

The second of the influential Italians, Annibale Carracci is represented by a painting, "Rest on the Flight into Egypt. It seems to show the attempt by this master to recapture the style of the High Renaissance in his figures and to look ahead to the liberation of landscape. In this painting Landscape is still an adjunct of religious painting but in his famous "Flight into Egypt" the small figures are incorporated into the landscape. Salvator Rosa, a 17th Century Italian, was one of the first to celebrate the wild and picturesque in nature and in the museum's "St. John Preaching" religious teaching has been subordinated to landscape.

Dutch landscape painting of the second half of the century is represented by two works of the greatest landscape painter of the period, Jacob van Ruisdael. These show the further liberation of landscape from the domination of figures.

chrysanthemums. There's a unique screen, all of 10 inches in height. It's made with a pane and covered with silver paper. Japanese screens have been brushed onto the silver. Another screen in similar design is slightly taller.

In Print

Faithful alumni will be interested in some new trays at the Little Gallery. They are prints of various schools and colleges, each matted print turned into a tray that's waterproof and even alumni proof, come reunion time.

Choose: Dartmouth, Yale, Cornell, Harvard, Andover, Exeter, Hotchkiss, Lawrenceville. A good print of Lawrenceville makes a $24.50 tray that's 13 1/2 by 20 1/2. A more inexpensive print and a slightly smaller tray would be about $15. Mats are muted shades that blend with the print, the frame and handles of the tray are wood that has been painted antique gold.

Pick up a $5 water color. The Gallery has little five-inch Nantucket scenes by the Beers, husband and wife. Each Beer working individually has produced a set of six water color scenes. These are about $50. Another five dollar set will buy you a reproduction of a Persian tapestry, opulent in gold and luminescent color.

A collection of metal insects has a certain Oriental air, probably due to the delicacy and brilliance of each piece. A praying mantis and a hornet, each one about five inches long, are made of some heavy dull metal with touches of bright brass. A glittering butterfly in shining brass is giant with a six-inch wingspread. She's a holder for letters.

Leaves of brass — four brass leaves are designed to look lovely or to perform any function you give them. There is a geranium leaf, a lotus, a prosaic rhubarb, looking very dressed up in brass, and a little dogwood blossom that's really a letter clip.

schoolmaster's wife — but MGM's Vincente Minnelli provides deft directorial skill. The conclusion of this 122-minute adult film is anticlimactic, though the rest of the poignant tale may make it bearable.

THE GARDEN

Nov. 8-10) is a spoof that rivals much American cinematic covering the same domestic problems, only it's told in French with English titles. Not a great deal is known about this particular import, since it hasn't been on our shores very long, but rumor has it that the maid is the cause of some wild goings-on. According to Newsweek magazine: "This picture has more to say about the real spirit of France than all the guidebooks in print."

The Doctors (Nov. 12-14), also in French with English titles, follows in the footsteps of a host of predecessors, proving once again that the Paris boys can put together a fine film. It's based on Andre Soubrin's best-selling novel of life in the Parisian medical world, offering "Men devote more time to the weekly hour on TV and much more than 'Dr. Kildare' with an accent. In this case, the film concerns the morals and mores of men who carry 'a thousand intimate secrets under the seal of professional ethics.'"

THEATRE INTIME

Curtain at 8:30 p. m. Honoring the 100th anniversary of the birth of George Bernard Shaw, Theatre Intime will open its 10-night run of "Androcles and the Lion" at 8:30 this evening in Murray Theatre on the Princeton campus. The production will continue through Saturday, November 27. Tickets (Mon. - Thurs. $1.00, $1.25, $2.00, Sat. $1.50, $2.00) are on sale now at the Princeton University Store (PR 1-5414) and will be available nightly at the Murray box office.

Michael Glenn (Princeton '59) will portray Androcles, with Shirley Menaker of Dutch Neck and Charles Adair (Princeton '57) also cast in lead roles. Author of "The Travellers," one of last year's prize-winning one-act plays, Mr. Glenn has acted in "Clash by Night" and "The Braughton Warrior" with Intime, and appeared in "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Darkness at Noon" with the Atlantic Summer Playhouse in Georgia.

gation to date indicates an expected "rapid development in residential sections in the area within five years." He based his prediction on the fact that "within a municipality adjacent to the watershed area, there has been an increase of more than 300 per cent in the number of homes in the past nine years."

This growth, he said, has multiplied problems in highway development, school building and many other necessary facilities. "It appears that there will be areas acute water shortages if this dense development continues because of the inability of the land to produce sufficient water supplies. There are certain areas in the watershed where a density of eighty families per ten acres is possible under existing regulations, while the ground water supply is barely adequate for three families."

Referring to the watershed—a 300-square-mile area roving parts of five central New Jersey counties—as "an island between two large steamrollers of development," Dr. Wilkens said public recreational facilities in the area are below standard, protection of existing development appears inadequate and "the loss or inefficient exploitation of natural reservoirs is imminent in many parts of the area."

"There is a tremendous need for thinking at the regional level," the director stressed. The lawbooks have endorsed such regional endeavors for years, but only recently, with the formation of such organizations as the watershed association, have planners begun to take vitally needed action. Dr. Wilkens vowed that his workers would continue to "irritate ideas" with ensuing reports on their long-range research.

Borough PTA Presents Speaker. "Problems facing public education today" has been chosen by the Borough PTA as its theme for the year. John L. Childs, professor emeritus, Teachers College, Columbia University, will speak on the subject at a meeting on Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Nassau Street School.

The author and co-author of many educational books including "Education and Morals" and "Education in an Age of Anxiety," Professor Childs has been active in educational YMCA work in Peking in association with the Princeton unit there. He has received numerous honors for his work in the field. The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Birth List, Nine boys and four girls were born to Princeton area parents last week at Princeton Hospital.

Parents of sons are Mr. and Mrs. John R. Ward, 11 Maple Avenue, Plainsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Julian Shedlovsky, 39 Vandeventer Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Mark E. Singley, Amwell Road, Belle Mead; Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, 21 Clay Street; Mr. and Mrs. Constantino Tamasl, 100 Linden Lane; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cooke, 87 Rolling Mead; Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Schioppa, 341 Witherspoon Street; Mr. and Mrs. John Cromwell, 71 East Prospect Street, Hopewell; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldino, 14 Pine Street.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. McKean, 233 Mount Lucas Road; Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin Carpenter, 76 Cuyler Road; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Kane, 820 Princeton-Kingston Road; and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lind, 16 Manning Lane, Lawrenceville.

P.M.I. Building Ready Soon. January 1 has been set as the date when the new Princeton Municipal Improvement building at 32-36 Nassau Street will be ready for occupancy. The four-story structure will be open for inspection by the first of next month.

The 11,708 square foot building is completely air-conditioned and equipped with an automatic elevator. The ground floor space of 3,000 square feet will be used as a shop, and the other three floors will be subdivided into office space as required by tenants. Off-street parking space is available for the tenants.

The buildings designers, Kenneth Kassler and Associates of Princeton, have given it a colonial exterior motif in keeping with other Palmer Square structures. The builder is the Matthews Construction Company.

Radcliff Dean Will Speak. Mrs. Kathleen O. Elliott, Associate Dean of Instruction at Radcliffe College, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Radcliffe Club of Princeton next Thursday. The meeting will be held at 8:15 p. m. at the home of Mrs. L. B. Holland, 79 Deerpath.

The club is extending an invitation to present and prospective students of Radcliffe and their parents. Mrs. Holland will speak on "Life at Radcliffe Today."

Smith Club Meeting. Mrs. Clifford P. Cowen, general secretary of the Alumnae Association of Smith College, will speak at the annual fall meeting of the Smith College Club of Princeton Tuesday. The meeting, the first of the year, will be held at 8:30 p. m. at Heathcote Farm, the home of Mrs. Peter Cook, the club's new president.

Mrs. Cowen graduated from Smith in 1920 and since then has been active in class, club and alumnae association affairs. Transportation to the meeting may be obtained by calling Mrs. Clifford Lamar (1-1808-W.)

New Standpipe Planned. A 500,000-gallon standpipe will be erected in Princeton Research Park by next October. The new water tower will be built by the Princeton Water Company. It will double present water storage facilities and, working in balance with the existing standpipe on John Street, will equalize the system and augment the water supply to the entire Princeton community.

Research Park will give the water company a piece of land in its 70-acre plot north of the Shopping Center for the standpipe. Details of location are presently being worked out by the water company, together with the Township Planning Board.

ing worked out by the water company, together with the Township Planning Board.

The standpipe will be secluded among trees and will hardly be seen. The water company has already received bids on the proposed tank and is ready to go ahead with the project as soon as possible. Erection of the standpipe is part of the company's $500,000 expansion program.

NO JONES BEACH

Island Beach Plant, Island Beach, the 10-mile sweep of shoreline in Ocean County that has been the focal point of a heated pro-naturalist versus public park controversy, will not be made "another Jones Beach or made exactly comparable to any other seashore park," according to Joseph E. McLean of Random Road, New Jersey Commissioner of Conservation and Economic Development.

McLean announced that although the state expects to develop recently-acquired Island Beach for a number of different

Lawrenceville Topics

Split Decision. Lawrence Township voters split their vote Tuesday, naming incumbent Lloyd A. Carver, a Democrat, with 2,813 votes - and selecting Republican John A. Heck (2,212) to serve with him. The losers' totals: Democrat Cornelius T. Morris, 2,308 and Republican Purvis Breahey, 2,246.

Democrat John Russo won the contest for assessor, polling 2,723. His opponent, William T. Oldenburg, received 2,319.

Lawrenceville Women Meet. John Dunning, assistant to the director of Radio Free Europe, will speak on recent developments in Hungary at the November meeting of the Lawrenceville Women's Club on Tuesday. The meeting will start at 8:15 and will be held at the Cleve House in Lawrenceville with Mrs. Marshall H. Chambers, hostess.

Tea will be served with Mrs. Joseph E. Alloway, Mrs. J. K. Sheehan, Mrs. Joseph R. D. Chivers and Mrs. Harry Haegy acting as co-hostesses.

forms of recreation, it is determined at the same time to preserve its remarkable plant and bird life which has always captured the attention of naturalists." He added the state is also pledged "to retain as much as possible of the natural sand dune line that gives Island Beach such a picturesque quality and differentiates it from all other sections of the shore."

Island Beach was acquired by the state in 1953 with a view toward establishing the first state-owned public park on the Jersey shore. It is the only area along the northern Atlantic coast of the United States which is celebrated for its unusual vegetation and bird life and yet still remains in an entirely natural condition.

On the basis of present thinking, according to Dr. McLean, one-third to one-half of the tract would be preserved in its present natural state, with a botanical sanctuary at the northern end of the barrier and a bird sanctuary at the southern end. Entry to both sanctuaries would be limited to small authorized study groups.

McLean stated the central area is the logical point for recreation, which will include surf fishing, bathing, picnicking, boating and specialized play. He visualizes a series of bathing units on both the ocean front and on the shore of Barnegat Bay, which flanks the Island on the west. Each of the units would consist of a parking area, bathroom, sanitary and water supply facilities and observation shelters.

Noting Island Beach's reputation for surf fishing, Dr. McLean said there is no reason why virtually the entire beachfront should not be used for this purpose—with the exception of the central recreation area during the bathing season. He added, "I am very much afraid that we might fail to realize the full value of this extremely valuable property if we do not carefully analyze in advance all the aspects of development to determine precisely what we shall be doing at every step along the way."

The commissioner expressed hope it would be possible within a short time to make a start on the initial phases of development. He added it was unfortunate funds have not been available to undertake and complete the projects necessary to open Island Beach to more citizens.

"We have been taking full advantage of the time available to investigate all the potentialities of the area," he said, "and to hammer out a program to insure that this state park on the Jersey shore will conform to the highest standards of park development."

Miscellany. The Salvation Army will entertain members of the Kiwanis Club this Thursday at Perry and Mulberry Streets, Trenton. The luncheon is in the form of an acknowledgment by the Salvation Army for the gift Kiwanis made to the organization.

The Montgomery Township Parent-Teacher Association will discuss the school's physical education program at its November meeting Tuesday night at 8. Children of the school collected nearly $100 for UNICEF in their "Trick or Treat" Halloween program.

The Trenton Naturalist Club will sponsor a bird-watching trip Sunday to Shark River and ponds near Point Pleasant. Those needing transportation should be at Nassau and Mercer Streets at 7 a.m., bringing their lunch.

Veterson's Day will be observed on Monday by the Post Office. There will be no delivery of mail, and window service will be suspended. Holiday collections will be held as usual, and special delivery mail will go out as usual. The Post Office lobby will remain open all day for the convenience of box holders.

Miss Nancy Lee Kettle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Kettle of Hopewell, has been elected manager of the intramural hockey team, at Lebanon Valley College in Annville, Pa. Miss Kettle, who is a senior, has played varsity hockey for two years. A graduate of Princeton High School, she is a member of the Kappa Lambda Nu social society.

The annual Trustee Convocation at Sarah Lawrence College is being held this Thursday in Reisinger Auditorium at the College's Art Center. The entire college community will meet to honor the Board of Trustees, which includes Mrs. Hibben Ziesing, 80 Edgerstone Road.

NOTHING'S QUIET ON EASTERN FRONT: While store owner Merrill Zinder checks papers on his Nassau Street newsstand, where sales are fast these days due to world crises, customers Roland Gunther (left) and Joseph Danbury start reading the news at once. They boast widely divergent views regarding the Suez situation, as indicated by their answers to Question of the Week (below), and they enjoyed a heated sidewalk debate — in true American tradition — after revealing their sentiments for the inquiring reporter. (Town Topics Photo by Ed Helm)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think Great Britain and France were justified in their move to protect the Suez Canal?

Location: Nassau Street.

Roland Gunther, Princeton Junction, engineer: No — because it was not a move to protect. Ostensibly, it was such a move, but not in reality. My theory is that they prompted the Israelis to attack so they could plough in there!

Joseph Danbury, 178 Linden Lane, maintenance man for ASCOP: I've had my idea ever since this thing started. Britain and France are going to go just so far, just far enough to get the Suez back to normal. They don't want an all-out war, and they're not taking a chance of it getting out of hand. They know just how far to go; I guess you might call it an educational venture. And I feel they're justified, and also that the Russians won't be able to take advantage of the situation.

Merrill Zinder, 36 Stanley Avenue, co-owner of Zinder's store: I think it's about time something has been done to check Nasser, but it's a shame it had to be by force. For a number of years, Egypt has been going against UN policies — through killing, skirmishes and recently by not allowing use of Suez — in an effort to eliminate Israel's existence. Then, no adequate action or solution was tried by Britain, France or Israel when Nasser seized the canal. I don't think they want or expect a full-scale war, and I do think they are trying to find a peaceful settlement. Also, I think it's protective — and justified.

Mrs. T. R. Williams, 22 Edward Place, housewife: I don't think the British and French were justified in moving in. I know the situation was bad all around before, but the French and British are taking a terrible risk that war on a larger scale may break out. I think the United Nations are the only ones who can solve the conflict.

Hawley Waterman, Hun School math teacher and head football coach: No, because I want to see the UN work. However, I can see their point of view, too. They look at the Suez as their lifeline and, naturally, think of it differently than we do. I'd like to see us stick with Britain and France at all times, but this time following their move is not okay.

Mrs. Joanne Visser, visiting here from Newport, R. I., housewife: My viewpoint is formed solely from what I read in the papers and hear on the radio — a complete layman's view — but I feel it may be difficult to judge from an American viewpoint if the British and French were justified in their action. I have lived abroad for many years and am leaving in January for Spain to join my husband, who is a captain in the armed forces. From a purely civilian viewpoint, I feel that this country might have done the same thing, if it had been in Britain's or France's position.

Tony Klitus, Trenton, bartender at the Peacock Alley: They were justified in their efforts to regain control of the Suez — more or less — because Nasser and his fellow Egyptians broke their treaty agreements. But I definitely don't approve of their means to the desired ends.

Donald B. Jensen, New Brunswick, employee at ETS: I think their action was justified, but I don't condone it. This may seem ambiguous, but, while I do feel that they should not have moved in, I also have a certain sympathy for them. Since they are in there fighting already, they'd better knock Nasser off fast and see to it that another Egyptian government is chosen, and they'd better do a quick job so we won't find ourselves in a terrible war. I also think the British put the Israelis up to their attack.

SEMINAR IN CONSTRUCTION: Six small scholars study the theory and practice of blackboard installation at Littlebrook School. Later, they will write about what they've seen and learned for language class, draw pictures of it for art, and discuss it in social studies. In the front row are Greg Allen and Patty Cornell. Second row, front to back: John Rossi, Barbara Wither, Steven Vernon and Randy York. See below for further details of first school days at Littlebrook.

ORDERLY CHAOS

Scholars and Carpenters. Out at Littlebrook School these days there's an air of bustling and productive chaos.

Less than two weeks ago, the new school, still unfinished, was invaded by the last platoons of children who will make it their home. About 150 came from Valley Road School on Friday, October 19 and about 400 kindergartners converged on the school the following Tuesday. Ready to greet them were the principal, Dr. William D. Purcell, the teachers — and workmen still at their jobs, like the tile setter who laid the last tile on a class-room floor while the children waited outside in the hall.

Corridors may be stacked with cartons and the blackboards may not all be there, but Littlebrook has a definite atmosphere of learning. The earnest musician fling away on his violin or the quiet classroom intent on number work—there's no evidence that construction impedes instruction.

In fact, Dr. Purcell has drafted workmen to be teachers. Whenever there's an interesting building job in process, the children are taken to see it, and the workmen are happy to explain the intricacies of wiring so that a fourth grader can understand. One technician took apart a whole heater-ventilator and explained each part to a cluster of second graders while he put the thing back together again.

After they have watched a project, the children draw it, or write about it or discuss it for social studies. If the process has a danger element—like the recent installation of heavy blackboards that could do considerable damage to a small foot—the pupils are moved out of the class-room until the work is completed.

Because the children have been encouraged to watch the work closely, they are very grown-up when Dr. Purcell says "Stay away." For example, not a single child approached some forbidden heavy-duty machinery that was parked near the school for several days. "Their curiosity had been satisfied in other ways," said Dr. Purcell, "It's more fun to watch an electrician put in a plug."

Bell Problems. Probably the electrician meant more to Littlebrook than any other workman because he brought both heat and light. The autumn was warm enough so that heat wasn't missed too much, but no electricity meant no class bells. A child would walk through the halls ringing a big cowbell that belonged to Mrs. Gustave Eisenmann, superintendent of Township Schools. Later, they used an old British air-rail warden's bell that Dr. Purcell contributed.

Finally the program bells themselves were connected and ready to ring. The special fire gong had not yet been installed and the children were told that, if they heard the program bells ring when it wasn't time, that meant—fire drill.

So the very next day when the bells rang before it was time, the entire Littlebrook student body rose and marched outdoors in first-class fire drill formation. Only there wasn't any fire drill; the bells had short-circuited. (When the fire gong itself was hooked up, there was a real drill and everybody was out in a proud one minute, 52 seconds.)

"You have to live in a school to iron things out," says Dr. Purcell. Cooperation between principal's office, classroom and contractor has taken out many a wrinkle already.

Everyone Cooperates. Contractors who ordinarily like to finish a whole job have willingly reversed their work procedures to put first things first. Plumbers installed all the toilets before turning to the sinks. Heating contractors put in the fundamental units, just to get heat in the building and postponed things like thermostats until later.

The children have responded buoyantly to all situations. When there were no blackboards, they brought little ones from home or helped teachers devise easels with newsprint pages mounted on them.

No bulletin boards? They made them from discarded cartons, or used miles of Scotch tape to fasten paper to the cinder block walls. There are, as yet, no book-cases and no storage cupboards, but cartons have been re-designed and in many cases even painted.

Before the cafeteria opened last week, children ate in their rooms and frequently invited the class next door for a lunch picnic.

"You like Littlebrook?" "Sure!" Some of the older children miss the big Valley Road playground and its equipment, but the younger ones are unanimous about their new alma mater and every single one you talk to mentions...

"Drinking fountains!" exclaimed John Silvester, fourth grader who lives at 136 Alexander Street. "There's a fountain in every room and you can get a drink any time you want to."

(There is also a sink in every room and you can wash your hands any time you want to, but nobody mentioned this. In kindergarten rooms, there is also a toilet.)

Safety Factor. Betty Cox, third grader from Hillside Avenue, likes her new school because it's all on one floor and you can't fall downstairs. Carla Green, her classmate from 65 Leigh Avenue, thinks the school is cheerful and pretty with its bright yellow corridors and colored class-room walls. (Kindergarten rooms have glass walls with four random panes of yellow, red, blue or green.)

"Our class hasn't got them yet, but we're going to get these new desks," explained Peter Foster, fourth grader of 636 Prospect Avenue Extension, "they're pink or blue or green with formica"—Continued on Page 15

"How do you know when we need fuel OIL?"

Even without seeing your tank gauge, we know how much oil you are using—and when we should make our next delivery. This service, which we call our "degree-day" system, practically guarantees that you'll never be caught short; never run out of oil—even in the coldest weather. It's only one of the many special services we offer you—in addition to supplying you with the finest home fuel oil available at low prices.

Servicing you and your heating needs is the part we play in America's progressive oil industry. And there are thousands of other oil companies that serve you, too. Some of them look for oil; others transport it; still others refine it into many useful products—from gasoline and oil to new miracle fibers. But we independent businessmen have one thing in common—we are free to compete with one another. And you benefit.

So call us today—and let us help you have a warm, comfortable winter.

tops and did you know we can get a drink any time we want to?"

"Two future housewives, Marilyn Maxwell, third grade, 199 Snowden Lane, and Louise Lennihan, fourth grade, 53 Battle Road, dis-est ones probably figure this is cussed the problems of moving day, when they attended Valley Road School in the morning and moved to Littlebrook at 1 p. m.

"We looked the school over and we all liked it, especially the workmen going in and out of your room," Louise said, and Marilyn said it was pretty hectic: "We had a lot to do at it—unpacking, getting our work done, grabbing desks . . ."

Dr. Purcell points out that many children come from homes where families moved into a house before it was finished, and now they find the same situation at school. "I think the young—the usual way to live."

and lighter tone are supposed to get part of the landscape further away in depth. The landscape painting is a characteristic work of Ruisdael, an expansive wooded green landscape which is not built obviously from the foreground but uses a rather stable long diagonal to work into depth.

The works of the Dutch painters in genre and still life is represented in a charming small painting by Ostade, and a Still Life by Jirilaen Van Streeck and a curious flower framed memorial by Daniel Seghers.

The most interesting painting of the French School is a picture of "Two Boys Drawing" attributed to Mathieu Le Nain. In a unique composition, one sees two boys who have been engaged in copying figures, which can be recognized as figures by Jacques Callot. The three corresponding prints of the Callot figures hang next to the painting. This is an interesting example of the influence of Callot in French genre painting. Usually one hears more of the influence on the Le Nain brothers of the genre of the Low Countries, which they came in contact with at the St. Germain Fair.

Little Gallery Exhibit. The Little Gallery will open its second exhibition of the fall season Sunday with a showing of paintings and graphics by Hio Sabin and Dan Miller, both Philadelphia artists. The exhibition will run through November 24.
Mr. Sabin, the son of Mrs. E. S.
Owen of Princeton, exhibited here in March, 1955. Spending the summer abroad on the Cresson Traveling Scholarship, he meanwhile won second prize in oils in the summer exhibition at Penn State University, sold one of his prints to the Rosenwald Collection of Philadelphia and held a one-man showing of his graphics at the Red Barn Gallery in Philadelphia. Mr. Miller, who will be represented with oils, watercolors, drawings and a group of monotypes, spent 14 months in the Far East where he became interested in Oriental painting techniques.
Mr. Sabin will be represented by oils and woodcuts.

Cook Exhibit Arranged. An exhibit of paintings by Peter Cook is currently being held at the Studio Gallery at 94 Albany Street,
New Brunswick. The exhibition will last through November 24.
Mr. Cook, a resident of Kingston, is primarily a portrait and landscape painter. He has had one-man exhibitions in Princeton, Boston, Richmond, Va., Palm Beach, Fla., and Minneapolis, and exhibited at the New Brunswick
Art Center's annual fair last year.
He has received many prizes, among them first prize at the Montclair Art Museum and the Art Center Prize and Marine Prize at Ogunquit, Maine. Paintings of Maxwell S. Simpson of Scotch Plains are also shown at the exhibit.

Who Sells Goal?

Who decides the goal for the yearly community campaign?
This year, the budgets and campaign goals were set by about 300 Princetonians who have given hours and days of careful study to service and costs. The goal, this year set at $150,000 and the $25,000 additional amount, has been set in order to fulfill most effectively the needs of the various im-agencies supported by United Community Fund.

The many volunteers now working hard to reach the increased goal are hoping that the citizens in Princeton will realize the importance of giving, and of giving more than before. They stress the fact that there are families or individuals who cannot solve their problems without help.

Salacious Literature Talk Set. Howard W. Stepp, Princeton University registrar, will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the St. Paul's P.T.A. on Tuesday at 8 p.m. The sisters and teachers will be in their classrooms to confer with parents from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Mr. Stepp, who was recently appointed chairman of the Mercer County Clean Literature Committee, will speak on the committee's work to clean up newstands of salacious magazines and harmful comic-books. Refreshments will be served by four sixth grade mothers, Mrs. Francis Ferrara, Mrs. Clifford Stark, Mrs. David McDonald, and Mrs. Fred-eric Singer.

Hospital Benefits by $2,877. Mrs. George Bowers, president of the Hospital Aid Committee, has announced that Princeton Hospital benefited by $2,877 from the Fall Rummage Sale "through the generosity of the community."

Mercer Engine Company No. 3 and Princeton merchants were cited by Mrs. Robert Serrell as playing an important part in making the project a success. She also praised the work of the 200 volunteers who helped carry out the sale itself.

Women's Club Dinner Meeting. Cyril N. Hoyler, manager of technical relations for the David Sarnoff Research Center here, will address the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Radio Corporation of America Laboratories Monday evening as part of the November dinner meeting of the group. The dinner, which will be given for the club through the courtesy of RCA, will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Nassau Tavern. After dinner, the meeting will shift to the laboratories for Mr. Hoyler's talk.

The author and co-author of several technical articles and a book on radio frequency heating,

Mr. Hoyler will report on "New Adventures in Electronics. The State Federation Board of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs will meet Saturday, November 17 at the Princeton Inn, with Mrs. Wesley Konover and Miss A. Myrtle Hensor of the Princeton club serving as official hostesses.

Addition to Be Dedicated. The West Windsor Board of Education will dedicate the new addition to the Dutch Neck School next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Pupils will conduct a tour through the school with emphasis on the new addition, and a program has been planned. The regular business meeting will be omitted. The public is welcome.

Heart Tag Day. The Volunteers of America will hold its annual Heart Tag Day in Princeton Saturday, with school children serving as "taggers."

Mrs. Treasure Haverstock is chairman of the event, assisted by Miss Helen I. Darrohn of the Witherspoon School and Mrs. Betty J. Oskin of the Nassau Street School. The taggers, all volunteers, are asked to report to the Witherspoon Y.W.C.A. on Green Street at 9 a.m. Saturday.

PICTURE PUZZLE—WHO CAUGHT THE PASS? Brown halfback Dick Beland and Princeton wingback Ron Nelson both jumped for ball thrown by Jim Mottley in final period last Saturday. When Nelson, two inches shorter, came down with it, the Tigers final touchdown drive drew 30 yards nearer the Brown goal line.

BIG THREE ACTION

Harvard Here Saturday. The word from Cambridge, quoting Athletic Publicity Director Hank Johnson: "Harvard expects to be at full strength this weekend for the first time this season."

The word from Princeton, quoting Charlie Caldwell: "We haven't played a good game against those guys since 1952 and have beaten ourselves in the last two Harvard games."

If Harvard is not to break Princeton's string of six straight victories and spoil the Tigers' bid for both the Big Three and Ivy titles, the Orange and Black will have to turn out some solid football Saturday afternoon. It is not so much that the Crimson has won in convincing fashion every other Saturday and that this weekend is its turn to be a good team; rather, given on the gridiron all the ability it has on paper, the Cambridge entry could be a pretty strong outfit.

Anticipation of an exciting contest will bring the largest crowd of the season to Palmer Stadium, with a crisp afternoon of autumn sunshine likely to draw close to 40,000. Game time is 1:30.

Visitors Switch Attack. At the start of the 1956 season, Harvard coach Lloyd Jordan found himself with four particularly able backs, none of whom fitted into the number two (blocking back) slot in the single wing. Accordingly, he broke away from that traditional Crimson offense and has turned to the T.

At one point, Harvard began calling it the "A" formation (which Yale used against one of Princeton's unbeaten elevens in a desperate effort to pass the Tigers into defeat.) Cappy Cappon, who has scouted Harvard, merely reports laconically: "I don't know what an 'A' formation is—they lost their quarterback when he flunked out of college, and they're running and passing out of an unbalanced T."

Freshman Face Harvard

Princeton's impressive freshman football team will go after its fifth victim this season when it entertains Harvard 1960 at 11:30 Saturday morning on University Field. It will be the last home game of the year for the Tiger Cubs, who face Yale next Saturday at New Haven.

Tailback Dan Sachs, newly-elected captain of Matt Davidson's unbeaten outfit, scored one touchdown and passed for another as the freshmen trimmed a well-regarded Penn team last weekend, 19-7. The first score came when Sachs dropped a fourth-down pass from center, picked it up and threw 28 yards into the hands of wingback Bill McMillan, alone behind the Quaker secondary.

Sachs' substitute, Dick George, skirted end for 12 yards and the second Princeton score, with Sachs racing around the right flank from six yards out early in the third period. The freshmen gained 213 yards on the ground while holding the losers to 23 but lost numerous other scoring opportunities when they were guilty of eight fumbles.

If the Crimson can muster its top four backs at the same time, it will use small (163-lb.) Matt Botsford at quarter: 178-lb. Walt Stahura and 195-lb. Jim Joslin at the halves; and 215-lb. Tony Gianelly at full. The first three can all pass, Stahura and Joslin run well and Gianelly has for the past two seasons been one of the best fullbacks to face the Tigers.

Botsford missed the Penn game, as did another good Harvard back, Ron Eikenberry, but both are expected to be ready Saturday. It was Joslin who was largely responsible for Harvard's 14-9 triumph here two years ago, while last season he threw the touchdown pass that won for the Crimson in the rain, 7 to 6.

Up front, 212-lb. guard Captain Ted Metropoulos is the only hold-over in the line, which includes a 223-lb. tackle in Bob Shaumsey and another tackle, Dave Schein, at 210. The Crimson's difficulty this season has been its inability to field an experienced line, a situation underscored again last Saturday when a none-too-impressive Pennsylvania eleven gained 231 yards on the ground in rolling a 28-14 triumph.

It is this prowess that makes the visitors a clear-cut underdog in the first Big Three clash of the season, since the Tigers have not been stopped in their rushing game this season and do not figure to have undue difficulty in this respect Saturday. To keep the Harvard defense honest is the steadily improving passing attack that is clicking at a 50% average (42 out of 84) and is paced by Jim Mottley's fine record of 15 for 23, or 65%.

itions as quarterback, fullback and center, the Tigers can put 11 starters and 11 reserves on the field who have earned everything they have passed in the record book this season. Their defense is not rock-ribbed, and they will undoubtedly have to score at least twice and possibly three or four times in order to be assured of victory Saturday.

However, ability to run through the middle, off tackle and to the outside, all behind considerably better than average blocking, is again the symbol of the single wing as the Tigers play it. If they lose to Harvard for a third year in a row, it will be extremely surprising.

Brown Taken in Stride. Looking ahead to its Big Three games and hampered by accurate but hair-line penalty calling, Princeton knocked off its sixth straight victim last Saturday when it topped a battling Brown team, 21 to 7. The visitors were woefully lacking in experienced backs but had a tough, determined line and might have gained a totally unexpected tie as late as the fourth period.

A 35-yard touchdown run on the fourth play of the game was cancelled when Hewes Agnew's trip to the end zone was nullified by an offside penalty. The Tigers then stalled out on the one, recovered a fumble on the Bruin

15 and sent Agnew over on the wedge play six yards later.

That was their only score of the half, however, with a 94-yard journey in 13 plays bringing the next TD as soon as they came into possession after the intermission. Jim Mottley's pass to reserve end Charlie Diebrow ste up the final 33 yards of this match, with Alan Manzler adding his second conversion to make it 14-0.

WE Congratulate

JIM MOTTLEY
Princeton Tailback

When Jim Mottley played his first varsity game for Princeton against Rutgers this season, he was forced to kick from behind his own goal line. A pass from center had potential blockers swarming all over him and he threw a hurried pass that was intercepted. Even if it had been completed, a penalty for ineligible receivers downfield (a guard and tackles covering the kick) would have nullified the play. Charlie Caldwell and Jim Mottley vowed together that the obvious lesson would be learned, and last Saturday proved it had been. Caught in a similar spot, with the Tigers protecting a slim 7-0 lead against Brown, Mottley tucked the ball under his arm, shot around Brown's on-rushing end, Captain Dick Bence, and ripped off nine invaluable yards for a first down. The Tigers went on from there to mop up their second score. Mottley throwing a perfect 27-yard aerial to end Charlie Disbrow for the TD.

In the final period, with the outcome still in doubt, Mottley ran the kickoff after the Brown touchdown back 17 yards and then ran or passed on 10 of the 13 plays that covered 76 yards for the final score. He completed five of six passes during the afternoon for 101 yards and carried ten times for 53 more, raising his personal total to 154.

A standout with the Tiger 150-lb. team a year ago, he is with the varsity today because he believes that's where he belongs despite his scant 160 pounds. His versatility is clearly indicated by the fact that he was originally scheduled to play wingback, was switched to alternate with Tom Morris when injuries hobbled other tailbacks, and was a member last year of both the basketball and lacrosse squads, winning a letter in lacrosse.

Football Notes

Charlie Caldwell's scheduled appearance on the television program "Omibus" was postponed last weekend because the program was devoted to the international situation. He will appear this Sunday at 9 (ABC Channel 7) to analyze films of the Harvard-Princeton game.

The University Department of Athletics is selling tickets at Gullion Gym on the special train. It has scheduled to take football and soccer teams to New Haven on November 17. The train leaves the lower yards at 7 a.m., returning at 6:05 p.m. Round trip is $7, one-way $3.50.

For details of a special leave-in Princeton for New Haven later that morning, call the Pennsylvania Railroad (9369).

found its offense bogged down and, of necessity, was forced to concentrate on defense in an effort to halt Hun. A fairly good job was managed, but not good enough to thwart the passing of Charles Bennett, who set up a first-period score with a loss and actually accounted for the second quarter TD with a pass to Halfback Bob Gottschalk that covered 46 yards. Quarterback George Cramer sneaked two yards for the first Johnny Hun touchdown, with John Greene adding the conversion. Fullback Jim DeLong also moved well on the ground, picking up four of the winners' seven first downs.

PCD Sports Report. Princeton Country Day School's football team will go after its fourth straight victory this Thursday at 3 when it entertains Newark Academy on the Broadmead field. PCD topped the Pingry freshmen last week, 6-0, for the second time this season. The lone score of the game was manufactured on a second-period pass that Pony Fraker threw to Bill Applebaugh. The latter also played a top defensive game for the victors.

Country Day School's soccer team lost, 3-0, to Lawrence Junior High last week. Games this week were scheduled with Fiddle at Hightstown and Witherspoon School on the latter's field.

The latter also put six kickers in the 200-plus category, a notable achievement since the scores were higher than those registered by the Major League leaders and they came right after the rollers in which no less than 11 "B" rollers hit high figures. . . . Dick Edwards of Titus Motors paced the "B" sparkplugs with 233, though Larry Golden's 601 series (225-205-171) highlighted the evening.

Trailing the top duo were Bruce Ferguson, 223, Jack Peterson, 209-213, Mike DeSanna, 203, and Joe Baldino, 200.

ORC remained atop the 100 team "B" loop with 30 wins, followed by Boice Lumber and the Plainsboro Lions, with 28 wins each. . . . In the six-club Major League, Frazee's Market held the top rung with 33 victories and Tiger Garage kept in close pursuit.

foot line before going 33 yards and scoring on a short, fourth-down pass. The losers could have threatened seriously, had not the Tigers kept possession continually, never yielding the ball until they had covered 76 yards for a touchdown insurance touch.

Both the second half scores Princeton achieved were largely the work of Jim Mottley (see box, page 20).

LITTLE TIGERS' FINALE

Play Ewing Today. Accommodating their teachers and school systems, scheduled to close up shop Friday for an annual state educational rendezvous in Atlantic City, the football teams of Princeton High and Ewing High will tangle this afternoon in the season's finale for both clubs. Came time at Harris Field, where a "loss-up" contest is expected, will be 2:15 p.m. (also a switch from the norm).

The Blue Devils will come to town sporting a record of four straight victories, during which they piled up big scores, following losses to powerful Trenton and Pennsbury plus a tie with Burlington. The Little Tigers, despite last Saturday's bruising setback in Long Branch, will welcome a crack at these traditional opponents—and the opportunity to avenge Ewing's 13-7 triumph of 1955 while evening this year's loss 4-4.

For those interested in such matters, the outcome of today's encounter will determine second place in intracounty competition, both teams having dropped meetings with THIS and succeeded against Trenton Catholic and Hamilton.

Princeton was overwhelmed last weekend, 47-19, as a great Long Branch eleven extended the school's unbeaten streak to 18 games by mounting the most points registered against PHS since Joe Ingilli took over as head coach 11 years ago. It was tough to take, but, at least, Ingilli and his colleagues were consoled by the impression that their charges met "one of the more terrific high school teams" in New Jersey scholastic history and in Fullback Alvin (Bobo) Reeves, "the year's best back."

There were other satisfactions temper the wallowing, too. The Little Tigers played on even terms with the Branchers for 26 minutes of the first half, leading at one time 13-7—the first club to lead Long Branch in seven outings this campaign. They finally totaled 19 points, one more than the winners, the other two have managed to total (combined), earning praise from Coach Mike Ippolito as "Long Branch's top competition to date." And, in addition, Princeton was obliged to try a trio of sophomores at the key tailback slot throughout the second half as regulars Dick Knowles and Ivan Riddick were sidelined with injuries.

Knowles Tallies Twice. Continuing where he left off in his dazzling spree at Somerville's expense, Knowles stunned Long Branch and kept PHS in the ball game with two sensational touchdowns-producing runs before a head injury forced him from the field. In the first period, he went 26 yards for six points and Joe (The Toe) Nuts added another with a PAT. In the second period, he raced 62 yards for a beautiful TD and a brief Blue and White edge.

The Green Wave had scored first, and soon was to tie the contest, then move ahead to stay on the first of four touchdowns by the spectacular Reeves, a 35-yard punt return that gave Long Branch a 20-13 halftime advantage. After Reeves scored two third-quarter TDs, to push the margin to 33-13, PHS made its final attempt to get back in contention.

Roddy Pannell, subbing for Knowles, ran back a kickoff 80 yards, only to have the fine effort nullified by a clipping penalty. Moments later, Butch Cross, another reserve Princeton tailback, passed nicely to End Jim Henderson, who lateraled to Fullback Nick Kovalakides and thus put the finishing touches on a 20-yard scoring play. That was the end of the line for the Little Tigers, however, and the Branchers were still to net two more TDs in the final period.

HUN WINS FIRST

Solebury Is Victim. Taking full advantage of quarantine conditions on the home field, a rash of Solebury sickness and red determination to win, Hun School's football team played its best game of the season last Friday and won without difficulty, 13-0. The victory was Hun's first in five games, while the defeat left visiting Solebury with a 1-3 campaign record.

"We had a line today—a line that did well on defense and tackled with authority—and that was the ball game," Coach Henry Waterman commented, obviously much pleased at registering his initial triumph as head coach of the Red and Black. He singled out Co-Captains Tom Tilton and Bruce Beckmann, along with Jim Hagenbush, as particular line stalwarts.

Solebury, with two linemen working in its backfield because of an outbreak of gripe at school,

Obituaries

William M. Karch, 63, of 115 Jefferson Road died suddenly on November 5 at his home. Born in Trenton, he had lived here for the past 57 years.

Mr. Karch had for many years been secretary of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company before his retirement resulting from a heart ailment. He had also served as secretary of the Township Board of Education for two decades and was a former tax assessor in that municipality.

He was a member and trustee of the Second Presbyterian Church; a member of Princeton Lodge No. 38, F&AM; Princeton Chapter No. 91, OES; the Princeton Rotary and Shrine Clubs.

Husband of Mrs. Wilma B. Karch, he is also survived by a son, William H. of Blawenburg; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Ann Karch of Princeton, and a grandson. The funeral will be held Thursday at 2:30 in the Second Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. William L. Tucker officiating. Burial will be in Princeton Cemetery, under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Theodora A. Potts, 53, of 462 Stockton Street, died November 1 in New York Presbyterian Hospital, following a long illness. She was a native of this community.

Wife of Theodore R. Potts, builder and developer of the Princeton Shopping Center, she was a member of Princeton Chapter 91, Order of the Eastern Star, and of the Present Day Club. In addition to her husband, she is survived by a niece, Mrs. Thomas Anderson of Hopewell.

The service was held at The Mather Funeral Home, with the Rev. Dr. William L. Tucker, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

$1500 for Trick or Treat

Princeton's youngsters who went UNICEF-ing instead of Trick-or-Treating brought back $1500—money enough to set up three child guidance centers to care for the physical needs of underprivileged children and their mothers, or money enough to cure 10,000 children of yaws.

The figure was about $150 more than 1955 total, and it was achieved in spite of the fact that nobody in the senior class of Princeton High could participate because of homework. A total of 163 junior and senior high school students took part in the program.

Anyone who was missed and who would like to contribute may send a contribution to Terence Tice, 26 Library Place, or call him at 3108.

A New Community

CARTER BROOK KINGSTON

- If you desire a new community where each home is custom-built following individual tastes . . .
- If you want us to build you a home on a choice lot in the suburbs of Princeton where you are not right in town but near enough to enjoy its advantages.
- If you want a community where no lot can be smaller than two acres with room for a future swimming pool and tennis court.
- If you want restrictions in the community which provide for a minimum cost of home and lot at $35,000.

Carter Brook, located at Lincoln Hi-Way and Raymond Road, has been planned to incorporate all of the above protections for people who demand better living. The owners of Carter Brook will build you a home of your choice on the lot you select using your plans or ours.
